1. What is the required frequency for unannounced visits until case closure?

A. Every 30 days

B. Every 60 days

C. Every 90 days

D. Every 120 days

Unannounced visits are a crucial part of monitoring to ensure the safety and well-being of a child in a case. Choosing option A would mean that visits are being conducted too frequently and may disrupt the child's daily routine. Option B may not be frequent enough and could potentially delay addressing any issues that may arise in the case. Similarly, option D would not allow for enough oversight and could potentially overlook important information. Therefore, option C, visiting every 90 days, strikes a balance between ensuring timely check-ins and avoiding undue disruption for the child.

2. Methods for gathering assessment information include?

A. Monthly contact with children, parents, and CG

B. Annual reports

C. Online surveys

D. Community feedback

Methods for gathering assessment information can vary, but typically involve regular communication and interaction with children, parents, and CG (caregivers). Annual reports typically do not provide up-to-date or ongoing information, making them a less effective method for gathering assessment information. Online surveys may reach a larger audience, but may not always be representative or comprehensive. Community feedback is also helpful, but it may not always be available or accessible. Therefore, the best option for gathering assessment information is to establish monthly contact with children, parents, and CG, which allows for ongoing and personalized communication and observation.

3. What characteristic is mandatory for information collected in child abuse and neglect investigations?

A. Publicly accessible

B. Confidential

C. Anonymously published

D. Reviewed annually

Confidentiality is the most important characteristic for information collected in child abuse and neglect investigations because it ensures that the privacy of those involved is protected. Options A, C, and D all have limitations or flaws in maintaining confidentiality. Publicly accessible information could potentially harm the victims or the abusers, anonymously published information may still be traced back to the individuals involved, and information reviewed annually may not be as timely or secure as necessary in these sensitive cases. Therefore, it is essential for the information to be kept confidential to protect the well-being and safety of those involved in the investigation.

4. Visits should be held in the office when...

A. Scheduling conflicts arise

B. The protection of child cannot be assured elsewhere

C. It is more convenient for the family

D. The weather conditions are poor

When scheduling conflicts arise (A), it may be necessary to reschedule the visit or find an alternative location, such as conducting the visit remotely. While it may be more convenient for the family (C) to have the visit in the office, the safety of the child takes precedence in this situation. Additionally, holding the visit in the office can also ensure the protection of the child's privacy and confidentiality. Poor weather conditions (D) may also pose a safety risk for both the child and family, making it more appropriate to have the visit in a controlled onsite environment. Thus, the best option is to hold the visit in the office when the protection of the child cannot be assured elsewhere (B).

5. Which is the most reliable predictor of recurring harm?

A. Lack of remorse from the perpetrator

B. Socio-economic status of the family

C. Verified prior maltreatment

D. Number of siblings

Verified prior maltreatment is the most reliable predictor of recurring harm because it indicates a pattern of harmful behavior, and therefore increases the likelihood of future harm. Lack of remorse from the perpetrator and socio-economic status of the family may be contributing factors, but they are not necessarily reliable indicators of recurring harm. Similarly, the number of siblings may play a role in a child's safety, but it is also not a conclusive predictor of recurring harm. Therefore, while the other options may be factors to consider, they are not as reliable as verified prior maltreatment.

6. Generational poverty is described as?

A. Lack of material and money

B. Lack because of basic needs

C. Due to current situation

D. Persistent across generations

Generational poverty is defined as a pattern of poverty that is transmitted from one generation to the next and this is why D is the correct choice. Option A may be a consequence of generational poverty, but it does not fully capture the concept. Option B refers to a broader type of poverty, while option C does not accurately describe generational poverty.

SAMPLE

7. A permanency staffing should be held within how many months from removal?

A. 9

B. 10

C. 11

D. 12

A permanency staffing should be held within 11 months from removal. This allows for enough time to assess the child's situation and determine the best plan for their future. Choices A, B, and D are incorrect because they either do not allow enough time for proper evaluation or extend the process beyond a reasonable timeline. For example, holding the staffing after 9 months may not allow enough time for adequate assessments and decision-making, while waiting until 12 months may prolong the child's uncertainty and delay important permanency planning. Therefore, option C is the best choice because it balances the need for timely decision-making with thorough assessments.

8. Domestic violence can result in all the following EXCEPT?

A. Physical injury

B. Death

C. Financial Prosperity

D. Sexual battery

Domestic violence can result in physical injury, death, and sexual battery. However, it does not lead to financial prosperity. In fact, domestic violence can cause financial harm as well, with victims facing loss of income, assets, and employment opportunities due to their abuser's actions. Furthermore, victims may also incur significant financial expenses related to seeking medical treatment, legal assistance, and relocating to a safe environment. Therefore, financial prosperity is not a possible outcome of domestic violence.

9. If a parent consents or admits at the arraignment hearing, the next scheduled hearing is:

A. Disposition hearing

B. shelter review hearing

C. termination of parental rights advisory hearing

D. judicial review hearing

If a parent consents or admits at the arraignment hearing, the next scheduled hearing is usually a disposition hearing. This is because the parent has essentially accepted responsibility for the allegations against them, and the court can move forward with determining the appropriate next steps for the child. The other options are incorrect because - A shelter review hearing is held only if the child has been taken into custody and the parents are contesting the removal. In this scenario, the parent has already admitted or consented, so a shelter review hearing would not be necessary. - A termination of parental rights advisory hearing would be held only in cases where the state has petitioned for termination of parental rights. In this scenario, the parent has not yet admitted or consented, so this would not be the next scheduled hearing. - A judicial review hearing typically happens after a child has been placed in foster care and is meant

10. What does the Relative Caregiver Program provide?

A. Education

B. Housing

C. Financial assistance

D. Legal protection

The Relative Caregiver Program provides financial assistance to caregivers who are providing care for children whose parents are unable to do so. This assistance may be in the form of monetary support or vouchers for childcare, for example. Options A, B, and D may be relevant to caregiving but are not specific benefits of this program.
