1. How did God change the bitter water of Marah into good water?

A. By telling Moses to cut down a tree and throw it into the water.

B. By praying to God for relief.

C. By adding salt to the water.

D. By throwing stones into the water.

God reveals His power and care when His people trust and follow His instructions. In Marah, the water was bitter, but Moses did exactly what God told him: throw a piece of wood into the water. As soon as that happened, the water became sweet and drinkable. This shows that obedience to God can transform difficult circumstances and provide timely relief. The event is recorded in Exodus 15:25 and highlights God's faithfulness in guiding the Israelites through the wilderness.

2. Which of David's sons tried to take the kingdom from him?

A. Absalom

B. Amnon

C. Solomon

D. Adonijah

Absalom tried to take the throne from David. He revolted against his father, won the hearts of many Israelites, and publicly proclaimed himself king in Hebron, causing David to flee Jerusalem for a time. This rebellion is the clear instance of a son attempting to seize the kingdom. Amnon did not seek the throne (he harmed his sister Tamar and was killed by Absalom), Solomon didn't attempt to seize the crown (he was chosen as king by David), and Adonijah later tried to crown himself king in David's old age, but the well-known act of rebellion against David's rule is Absalom's.

3. What is sin?

A. A minor mistake

B. Refusing to do God's will as revealed by His Word and His Spirit

C. A social misdeed

D. A lawful act

Sin is disobedience to God—refusing to do what He has revealed through His Word and His Spirit. This means choosing to go against His will, not just making a small slip. Sin arises when we ignore or resist what God has told us to do and how He wants us to live. It's not merely a minor mistake, nor simply a social wrong, and an act that is lawful by human standards can still be sin if it conflicts with God's will. The defining idea is rejecting God's revealed will.

4. In which book and chapter is the first record of the Ten Commandments found?

A. Exodus chapter 20

B. Deuteronomy chapter 5

C. Leviticus chapter 19

D. Genesis chapter 2

The first record of the Ten Commandments appears when God speaks them to Moses on Mount Sinai, recorded in Exodus 20. This is where the full list is presented for the first time, along with the people's awe and Moses receiving the tablets. Deuteronomy 5 repeats the commandments later as part of Moses' farewell instruction to the new generation before they enter the land, so it isn't the initial recording. Leviticus 19 contains various laws but not the Ten Commandments as a standalone list. Genesis 2 mentions a single command given in the Garden of Eden, not the formal Ten Commandments for Israel. So, Exodus 20 is the first record.

5. How did Aaron and Hur help Moses gain the victory over the Amalekites?

A. By leading the army.

B. By praying with Moses.

C. By holding up Moses' hands.

D. By providing swords.

Holding up Moses' hands shows how the victory happened through steady leadership supported by others and by God's power. When the Amalekites attacked, Moses stood on a hill with the staff of God, and Israel's success depended on his posture of prayer. As long as his hands were raised, Joshua's army prevailed; when his hands grew tired, the advantage waned. Aaron and Hur noticed Moses' fatigue and helped by keeping his arms up—one on each side—while a stone was set for him to sit on, until the sun went down. This act kept Moses in a prayerful position and ensured the victory, illustrating how teamwork and support enable God's plan to move forward. It's not about leading the army directly or about swords or personal praying apart from that support; the key moment is their practical help in sustaining the leader's posture of intercession.

6. After Andrew met Jesus, what did he tell his brother Simon?

A. The King of Israel is here

B. We found the One promised by God

C. We have found the Messiah

D. We have found the Prophet

When Andrew first encounters Jesus, the most important truth he communicates is that they have found the Messiah—the Anointed One promised by God. This exact label, used in the gospel account, identifies Jesus by the divine role people were waiting for and explains why Andrew urges his brother Simon to meet Him. Messiah means the chosen Savior, and in Christian understanding, that title points to Jesus as the one who fulfills those promises. The other phrasings hint at related ideas—royal deliverer, a Prophet, or simply "the one promised"—but they are not the specific identification given in the moment. The emphasis here is on recognizing Jesus as the Messiah, which is why this statement is the best answer.

7. Which sign demonstrated that Aaron was God's chosen leader among the elders?

A. Aaron's rod blossomed

B. The burning bush appeared to him

C. The Red Sea parted for him

D. He was chosen by lot

The sign shows how God confirms leadership by a clear, miraculous token. In this case, Aaron's rod blossoming, sprouting buds and producing almonds, demonstrated that God had chosen Aaron to be the priestly leader among the elders. The miracle was specific to Aaron and stood out from the other leaders' rods, proving his special role in God's plan. The other options don't serve as that confirming sign here: the burning bush was a personal call to Moses, not Aaron; the Red Sea parting is tied to Moses' broader leadership rather than a confirmation of Aaron among the elders; and being chosen by lot was a method sometimes used to choose leaders, but it isn't the sign that identified Aaron in this instance.

8. Which tax collector sought to see Jesus by climbing a tree?

A. Peter

B. Zacchaeus

C. Nicodemus

D. Matthew

The idea being tested is recognizing the person who sought to meet Jesus in a memorable, visible way. Zacchaeus, a chief tax collector in Jericho, heard Jesus was passing through and climbed a sycamore tree to get a better view because he was short and the crowd blocked his way. Jesus sees him, calls him by name, and goes to stay at Zacchaeus' house that day, showing that Jesus welcomes those who seek him, even respected social outcasts. Zacchaeus responds with true change—promising to give half of his possessions to the poor and to repay fourfold anyone he cheated—demonstrating authentic faith. The other figures mentioned are connected to different stories and don't fit the tree-climbing scene.

9. In Ephesians, what command does Paul give to the children?

A. Children, obey your parents.

B. Children, honor your parents.

C. Parents, obey your children.

D. Children, listen to your teachers.

Children should obey their parents, because Paul presents this as the direct instruction to children within the Christian home: "Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right." The phrase "in the Lord" shows that this obedience is to be grounded in living under Christ's authority and for His purposes, not as a mere social rule. This fits into the family relations section in Ephesians, where Paul outlines how a Christian home should reflect order and love. While honoring parents is a related biblical principle and appears elsewhere in Scripture, the specific directive given to children in this passage is obedience. The other options don't match the exact command Paul gives to children in this context.

10. Who was the slave Paul won to the Lord while in prison?

A. Epaphras

B. Philemon

C. Tychicus

D. Onesimus

This question centers on the person Paul led to faith in Christ during his imprisonment. While Paul was under house arrest in Rome, he spoke with many and one runaway slave from Colossae—Onesimus—who became a follower of Jesus through his ministry. That conversion is tied to Paul's time in prison and is later addressed in the letter to Philemon, where Paul urges Philemon to receive Onesimus back not merely as a slave but as a beloved brother in Christ. So the slave who was won to the Lord in that situation is Onesimus. The other names are people connected to Paul's work, but Onesimus is the one who was converted in prison.
