Explanations

SAMPLE

1. Which word means something worthy of praise?

A. Laudable

B. Inferior

C. Unfavorable

D. Mediocre

Laudable means something worthy of praise. It comes from laud, to praise, and is used to describe actions or qualities that deserve commendation. For example: "Her laudable decision to volunteer helped many." The other words describe negative or non-praiseworthy qualities: inferior means lower in quality; unfavorable means not favorable or negative; mediocre means only average and not outstanding. Because laudable directly conveys that something deserves praise, it is the best choice.

2. A vandal is defined as which?

A. A painter

B. A librarian

C. A builder

D. A vandal

This item tests recognizing a self-referential definition. A vandal is someone who damages property. Among the options, the best choice is the one that defines the term by using the same word itself—the question asks who a vandal is, and the direct repetition matches that prompt. The other options describe unrelated professions (painter, librarian, builder) and don't define vandal.

3. The term that describes a person who tends to be irritable is

A. Choleric

B. Amiable

C. Jovial

D. Mellow

Describing temperament words that convey irritability, the term that fits best is choleric. This adjective comes from the old idea of a fiery, quick-to-anger temperament—the kind of person who can become upset or irritable with little provocation. In modern usage, someone described as choleric is seen as hot-tempered and easily irritated. Amiable describes someone friendly and good-natured, not prone to irritability. Jovial means cheerful and merry, often social and upbeat. Mellow implies calm, relaxed, and easygoing. None of these suggest irritability the way choleric does.

4. Plagiarize means to do what?

A. Copy someone else's work without attribution

B. Create original work

C. Summarize with attribution

D. Trade secrets

Plagiarism means copying someone else's work and presenting it as your own without giving credit. It happens when you use another person's words, ideas, or data and don't acknowledge the source, or when you claim ownership of something you didn't create. This is about honesty and giving proper credit for someone else's effort. If you create original work, you're producing your own ideas or expressions. That's not plagiarism. If you summarize with attribution, you're condensing information in your own words and crediting the source, which is acceptable. Trade secrets involve confidential information kept secret for competitive or legal reasons, and that concept isn't about copying text or ideas.

5. Which word is a synonym for 'esteem'?

A. High regard

B. Respect

C. Admire

D. Value

Esteem is about holding someone in high regard and valuing them, i.e., having a respectful attitude toward them. The best one-word match is respect because it directly captures that sense of regard and value you feel toward someone. Admire describes feeling admiration or awe, which is related but not the same stance as the overall attitude of esteem. Value focuses more on worth or usefulness rather than the personal attitude of regard. High regard expresses the same idea but as a two-word phrase, not a single word.

6. Which word means depression/ weakness?

A. Filibuster

B. Jaundice

C. Fortitude

D. Languor

The main idea here is matching a word to a mood or state of energy. Languor describes a lack of energy, vitality, or lively spirit—often with a sense of weariness or melancholy. That makes it a natural fit for "depression/weakness." You can picture someone languishing after illness or in a slump, displaying both physical tiredness and a down mood. In contrast, filibuster is about lengthy, obstructive speech, not a state of mood or energy. Jaundice is a medical condition affecting skin and eyes. Fortitude means strength and courage in adversity, the opposite of weakness. So the word that best captures depression or weakness is languor.

7. What is a meeting of members of a political party called?

A. Caucus

B. Conjecture

C. Disseminate

D. Bulwark

A caucus is a gathering of members of a political party to discuss issues, decide on strategies, or select delegates for a convention. It fits the idea of a meeting of party members, which is exactly what the question asks for. The other words don't describe a meeting: conjecture is a guess, disseminate means to spread information, and bulwark is a defensive barrier. So the term that best matches the scenario is caucus.

8. Exploited means:

A. To Take Advantage Of

B. To Set Free

C. To Move In Waves

D. To Endure

The idea being tested is the meaning of exploited as taking advantage of someone or something for personal gain, often in an unfair or harmful way. For example, you can say a company exploited workers by underpaying them, or a researcher exploited a data loophole to reach a conclusion. The other options don't fit because they describe different actions: to set free means release from captivity; to move in waves describes a physical motion; to endure means to withstand or tolerate hardship. None of those convey using someone or something for gain in a possibly unfair way.

9. Which term refers to isolation to prevent the spread of disease?

A. Arid

B. Quarantine

C. Scintillated

D. Inseparable

Quarantine is the public-health action of keeping people who may have been exposed to a contagious disease away from others for a period to see if they develop symptoms. This helps prevent any potential spread if they become contagious. In this context, the term that fits the idea of isolating people to stop transmission is quarantine. By contrast, arid means dry, scintillated means sparkled, and inseparable means cannot be divided; none of these relate to controlling disease spread.

SAMPLE

10. Which term best describes an obstacle or a strong defense?

A. Blockade

B. Caucus

C. Bulwark

D. Conjecture

Bulwark describes a sturdy defensive barrier or shield, whether a physical wall or a figurative safeguard. That makes it the best fit for an obstacle that also represents a strong defense, since it emphasizes protection against attack or danger. A blockade is also an obstacle, but it focuses more on stopping movement than on providing protection. Caucus refers to a group meeting or political faction, and conjecture means a guess. So bulwark captures the idea of a robust shield or barrier most clearly.
