Explanations

SAMPLE

1. Who is described as the president of the video club?

- A. Chase
- B. Aaron
- C. Helene
- D. Brendan Espinoza

The question tests your memory of a character's role within the school clubs. In the story, the video club is a student group that makes videos, and Brendan Espinoza is the one who leads it—he's shown running meetings, organizing shoots, and steering the club's projects, which is what makes him the president. Chase is the main character but not the video club leader, and Aaron and Helene aren't described as presidents of that club.

2. Where does Chase's dad sit for football games?

- A. 50 yard line
- B. End zone
- C. Bleachers
- D. Sidelines

Seeing the game from the middle of the stands along the 50-yard line puts you in the best position to observe the whole field. From there you can track how plays develop, read formations, and see both sides of the action—offense moving the ball, defense reacting, and special teams when they come into the picture. The view is balanced: you're not too close to one end that you miss plays developing at the other, and you're high enough to see players' positioning without straining to catch long passes. Sitting in the end zone tends to focus your view on one direction and can make it hard to track plays coming toward you or moving away. Sidelines put you right with the players and the action near the line of scrimmage, but you may miss how plays unfold toward the far end of the field. Bleachers are fine, but depending on the stadium, they can be farther away or not give as central a view as the middle of the field.

3. Which character is associated with attempting to make online content viral?

- A. Brendan
- B. Chase
- C. Kimmy
- D. Mr Solway

Think about who takes the lead in creating something online with the goal of it spreading to a large audience. The character who does this is Brendan. He's the one who devises a plan for a video or post and actively encourages others to share it, aiming to push it into wider visibility. That's the essence of trying to make content go viral: crafting something share-worthy and rallying people to spread it quickly. The other characters participate in different parts of the story—one is dealing with personal change, another with school life, and another with a supervisory role—so they aren't the ones driving the viral effort in the same way. Brendan is the best answer because his actions center on generating and amplifying online content to reach many people.

4. Who tries to hit Chase with the vacuum cleaner?

- A. Kimberly
- B. Aaron
- C. Brendan
- D. Nurse Duncan

The moment tests your recall of who directly launches the aggressive act in that scene. It's Aaron who steps forward and swings the vacuum cleaner at Chase, demonstrating a quick, impulsive willingness to intimidate him. Aaron's character is shown as hot-tempered and eager to push others around, which fits why he would be the one to physically attack in that moment. The other two serve different roles in the story and aren't the ones delivering the hit, and Nurse Duncan is there in a caregiver role, not as the aggressor. So, the one who tries to hit Chase with the vacuum cleaner is Aaron.

5. In Chase's memory, what incident involves his sister's teddy bear?

- A. He returned it
- B. He fixed it
- C. He ripped the head off his four-year-old sister's favorite teddy bear
- D. He hid it

The question tests recall of a memorable moment in Chase's past that reveals how young Chase behaved and how that moment affected his sister, shaping the emotional tension in his memory-recovery arc. In Chase's memory, the incident is when, at four years old, he rips the head off his sister's favorite teddy bear. This is the best choice because it shows a clear, dramatic act of anger that harms something precious to his sister and leaves a lasting mark on both of them. It explains why that specific moment sticks with him and becomes a touchstone as he pieces his memories together, highlighting themes of guilt, consequences, and the fragility of family relationships. Other actions would not carry the same weight or relevance to his memory narrative. Returning or fixing the bear suggests repair, and hiding it implies secrecy, neither of which captures the impactful, impulsive harm that the memory centers on.

6. What nickname do Shoshanna's parents call her?

- A. Shoshanna
- B. Shosh
- C. Shoshy
- D. Shoshie

A common way authors show family warmth is through a simple nickname that shortens a full name. In the story, Shoshanna's parents address her with a concise, affectionate form of her name, turning it into a quick, familiar sound they use regularly. That clipped version—Shosh—feels natural for how parents often call their kids at home, making it the best match for how they refer to her in everyday moments. Using the full name would read as more formal, while the longer forms like Shoshy or Shoshie aren't what you'd typically hear parents use daily. So the nickname they use is Shosh.

7. What was Brendan's last interaction with Chase before Chase sits with him at lunch?

- A. Chase and his friends used a tetherball rope to truss him to the tetherball pole
- B. Brendan asked for forgiveness
- C. Chase waved from a distance
- D. Brendan challenged Chase to a game

Understanding how past interactions shape current dynamics is key here. The last memory Brendan would carry of Chase before Chase sits with him at lunch is the moment Chase and his friends used a tetherball rope to truss him to the tetherball pole. That event embodies the cruelty and power imbalance of their history, making it the most memorable and significant interaction that would precede any shift in their lunch seating. It highlights the contrast between past bullying and whatever change might come later, giving context to why the lunch moment stands out. Other options depict milder or less consequential moments— forgiveness implies reconciliation, a wave from afar is passive, and challenging to a game is about competition, not about the lingering impact of a prior incident. The tetherball incident best explains the lasting impression that would frame the lunch-time scene.

8. Which object is connected to the theft discussion in the hearing?

- A. Ring
- B. Trophy
- C. Medal
- D. Bracelet

In this scene, the test focus is on linking the plot event to the object that drives the discussion. The text centers the hearing around a missing reward that holds personal meaning for the students—a medal. A medal is a natural target for a theft discussion in a school setting because it represents a prized achievement and is portable, easy to conceal, and closely tied to a student's identity and pride. This makes it the item the characters scrutinize during the hearing, shaping motives, access, and accountability. Rings, bracelets, and trophies could be plausible items in other contexts, but the narrative specifically uses the medal as the focal point of the theft discussion in the hearing, which is why it fits best here.

9. Who does Shoshanna say played a starring role in destroying her family?

- A. Chase
- B. Dad
- C. Joel
- D. Shoshanna

Understanding how a character speaks about themselves reveals a lot about motivation and accountability. Shoshanna's statement that she "played a starring role" in destroying her family shows she views her own actions as the key influence behind the family's downfall. The phrase implies significant personal responsibility, not just a minor part or someone else's doing. Since the line attributes the destruction to Shoshanna herself, that interpretation fits best. The other names would only fit if the line were about someone else, but the speaker is clear in taking credit (or blame) for her own part. This moment highlights themes of guilt, consequence, and personal accountability in the story.

10. Describe the little girl's dress in the painting.

A. Blue dress trimmed with white lace

B. Red dress with gold trim

C. Green dress with black lace

D. Light blue dress with a white ribbon

Noticing color and decorative details in a painting helps you describe what you see accurately. In this image, the little girl's dress is blue and trimmed with white lace, which matches the description that emphasizes blue fabric with delicate white edging. The other options propose different colors or trims—red with gold trim, green with black lace, or light blue with a white ribbon—which don't align with the observed blue fabric and lace trim in the artwork.
